THE CHIEFTAIN YET LINGERS. He Passes a Comfortable Might, Steeping Eintt Monro-A Diracle That He Mas Lived to Loue-Mis Wooderfut Will-Power. [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

NEW YORK, April 4.—Last night was a comfortable one for General Frant. He slept quietly in his easy thair with his feet resting on a stool from hertly before 11 o'clock until half-past o'clock this morning. He was much efreshed by his sleep of eight hours, mbroken save when reptly acqueed in refreshed by his sleep of eight hours, unbroken save when gently aroused to take nourishment at regular intervals. During the early morning the patient had occasional attacks of coughing. His breathing during the night was com-

Dectors J. H. Douglas and George F. Shrady remained with the General all night, and Colonel Fred. Grant was in the bed-room of his dying father mest of the time. Shortly after midnight the out-doors were closed and the lights burning in the upper windows turned low. About half-past 2 o'clock a bright light appeared in the windows of the library, which adjoins the rooms occupied by General Grant, and the forms of Drs. Douglas and Shrady were seen moving about behind the shade. Fitful gusts of rain pattered against the window-panes, and a heavy mist prevailed during the morning hours.

The only persons who trod the walks on the block where the Grant residence is located were a score of reporters and is located were a score of reporters and three policemen, and even they found the rain and mist so disagreeable that shelter in opposite door-ways was sought. At half-past 3 o'clock the following bulletin, signed by Drs. Shrady and Douglas, was issued: 3:30 A. M.—General Grant has slept continuously up to this time, only dis-turbed by occasional attacks of cough-ing to free his throat from mucous. He has taken nourishment regularly. His breathing is natural and pulse as usual.

A servant rolled up the parlor win-dow-shades at 5 o'clock, and Dr. dow-shades at 5 o'clock, and Dr. Skrady spened a window in the library and put his head out into the murky atmosphere. He looked up and down the street, and then retreating closed the window. Pretty soon signs of activity were seen about the basement.

Another bulletin at 6:30 A. M. was pulse is the same.

U. S. Grant, Jr., came from the St. Cloud Hotel at 7 o'clock. He walked through Sixty-sixth street without an umbrella, but did not seem to heed the rain which was then pouring down. He ascended to the library and was seen sitting at the window in conversation with Dr. Shrady. He had brought the morning papers with him and handed them to the Doctor. Mrs. Sartoris appeared at the library window for a few moments. Dr. Shrady came out of the house at half-past 7 o'clock and walked to Madison avenue, where he boarded a down-town car. He said that it was nothing less than a miracle that Grant should have lived so long and be in the condition he is. Dr. Douglas remained in the sick-room while Dr. Shrady was 11 4. M.—The improvement which the last statement suggests in General Grant's condition continues. Since taking his coffee he has had strong liquid nourishment twice. His throat has been attended to and the irritation which began to trouble him has been allayed. He walked firmly into an adjeining room to have his mouth and throat cleaned. He is now resting quietly in his easy chair. His pulse is about as yesterday at this time. [Signed] J. H. Douglas, M. D.

Ex-Senator Chaffee made his morn ing call at Grant's residence at $:15 o'clock this morning. General Dent dropped in at the Mutual District office, near General Grant's house. He sent a private message, and when about to leave he remarked upon what he designated the patient's wonderful will-power. General Dent said that last evening General Grant's pulse had been tried and found quite low, but soon after he asserted his determination to enjoy a stroll. He took Mr. Dent's arm and with his cane in hand walked slowly twice around the room. The effort seemed to be a spasm of energy, from which the patient lapsed into his arm-house at 9 o'clock this morning. He left a 10 o'clock. He stated that the General then seemed to be sleeping. His condition was little changed, and there was nothing to report as to added weakness or strength.

BETTER THAN HE HAS BEEN IN A WEEK.

This afterneon an artist called at General Grant's house. He brought with him several copies of a steel en-graving by himself of the General, for the General to put his autograph on them. The engravings are then to be presented to Senators Chaffee and Strat-ford. Dr. Newman and the attending physicians, Drs. Barker and Shrady, arrived about 2 o'clock. When Dr. Barker left the house he said that General Grant was better than he has been in a week. The General has been very quiet all the afternoon; has taken nourishment regularly; does not com-plain of his throat; pulse remains at about 72. He moved from room to room without trouble, and changed from his bed to his easy chair and back again.

A WRONG IMPRESSION.

An impression prevails in many minds that hypodermic injections of brandy were not only employed to rally General Grant from the death-swoon on Thursday morning at daybreak, but that the General has since been sus-tained almost solely by the use of liquors administered by the physicians. This is untrue. On Thursday mornwhen death was believed to only fire minutes away, Dr. Shrady injected one drachm of brandy beneath the skin of the General's right forearm. Beneficial effects were speedily observed and soon after the operation was repeated, a drachm then being ad-ministered with a hypodermic syringe. Thus two drachms of brandy kept off That was all the liquor stimulant then administered and not a drop has been ed a conviction that these ap-ns of brandy saved his that time. An attendant in the sick-room, as Dr. Shrady was leaving General Grant this morning, heard the following dialogue: "Now, neral, good morning; you have had plendid night," remarked the physi-n, cheerily. "Yes; I feel quite reow, General, the way to make me appy is to stay that way until I come ack at 2 o'clock this afternoon," said he Dector, " and when I then ask you heppy is to stey that way until I come back at 2 o'clock this afternoon," said the Doctor, " and when I then ask you how you are you are to say you are in the great strike in England.

"But I am sure you will be better," insisted Dr. Shrady, cheerfully. "I will agree to be if you keep up the same line of action, and tell Dr. Deuglas to do so when you are gone," responded the General. "Certainly I will ask him to de so," returned the Doctor; "we intend to keep up this same line of action." Here Dr. Shrady hesitated a second, and then, with a smile, added—

smile, added—
"IF IT TAKES ALL THE SUMMER."
At this quotation of the great General's famous utterance the patient looked quickly up and smiled.

Dr. Shrady returned to the house at 2 P. M., and soon after Dr. Barker drove up. Dr. Douglas had already arrived. After consultation Drs. Douglas and Barker left the house. Dr. Barker then said that General Grant was better than he had been in a week, that his throat was easier, and that the mucous was in a week, that his throat was easier, and that the mucous was less adhesive and more easily thrown off. Between 3 and 4 P. M. the patient complained of chill in his room, and a weed fire was started in the grate. The easy-chair was wheeled near the fire-place, and there the General rested, with Dr. Sheed-and Mrs. Sartoris near by. Callers were comparatively few during the day. Some flowers were sent to the house in the afternoon. Evening and Night Bulletins. The following bulletin was issued at General Grant has been sitting in his casy chair by a cheerful wood-fire, en-joying it and doxing at intervals. He is at this moment peacefully sleeping. His pulse is good and his general condition is unchanged.

6 P. M.:

General Grant has within the past half hour became somewhat restless, changing his position alternately from chair to bed. He had complained of pain in the throat, which has been relieved by local application of coccaine. He has occasionally walked about his room, and for a change sat up a short time in the library. His pulse remains time in the library. His pulse remains the same and temperature is normal. The light in the room of Colonel Fred. Grant flashed brightly up, and figures of many people flitted in and out of the bed-room of the dying soldier. A messenger-boy came hurriedly down the stoop with a message for Dr. Douglas, who was summoned in hot haste. About 9:25 Dr. Douglas arrived at the house, and as he had not been expected house, and as he had not been expected until 11 P. M. it looked as if the General had taken a turn for the worse. Senor Romero left the house about 9:45, and he said that the General was sleeping quietly and he thought the outlook was favorable.

General Washington News. [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]
WASHINGTON, April 4.—It is said to-day that ex-Representative Talbott, of Maryland, will be appointed Solicitor of the Internal Revenue to succeed Judge Charles Chesley, resigned by request. The delegates to the Methodist Protestant Conference now in session in Alexandria, Va., visited the White House to-day in a body and paid their respects to the President.

The statement that the nomination of neral Alexander R. Lawton to be Minister to Russia was reported adversely by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, which statement was given out through official channels, seems to have been incorrect. The committee, it is now said, simply reported the nomination back to the Senate with the facts in the case, but without re-commendation. Before reporting the nomination the committee privately intimated to the Secretary of State its opinion that General Lawton was ineligible for the purpose of affording an opportunity for the presentation of any opinions which the Administration might entertain upon the subject, or for the withdrawal of the nomination, the desire of the committee being to avoid course taken by the committee and the Senate an opportunity was purposely left for the future removal of General Lawton's disabilities if any were found to exist, or for his appointment during the recess of the Senate if upon investi-gation it should be found that he was eligible. NORFOLE QUIETING DOWN. THE SITUATION YESTERDAY.

Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch
NORFOLK, April 4, 1885.

The excitment caused by the suspension of the banks has subsided entirely, and the outsider would see nothing in the conduct of our people to indicate that they had passed through a crisis, but the trouble is not at an end. The city's business has been ahaken to the centre, and it will take time to recover. ime to recover.
So far as the other banks are con-

So far as the other banks are concerned, they will be the gainers by the suspension of the Exchange, as of course the business of this bank, which was fully one third of the business of the combined banks of the city, must be distributed through the other banks, and already many year accounts have be distributed through the other banks, and already many new accounts have been opened. These banks have plenty of money, and there is more money in the city to-day than ever before in the history of the city. It was brought in yesterday in bales, and all the banks are flushed.

I have just had a talk with a prominent banker, and he speaks encouragingly. He says the banks knew several days beforehand that the Exchange was in a had way. Indeed, the Exchange so that when the crash came the banks not only had their usual funds, but each some $30,000 additional.

There was nothing of a panic, as that term is understood. That is to say, the Exchange did not fail by reason of a run on its deposits, but by the mismanagement of its officers.

Business with the banks is quite extincted by a purely husiness.

active to-day, and in a purely business way they are discounting as usual. No failures are reported as yet, and it is hoped that all will be able to tide over the storm.

The other banks in the city have always been on terms of confidence with each other, and know pretty well how the business of each stands, but the Exchange was the big bank, and kept its secrets. Even the clerks in the bank knew nothing of the true condi-tion of things, it is said, and were as much surprised as the outside public at the closing of the bank's doors.

The Exchange does not make the best showing in the world, and the greatest surprise is expressed that the Bains were allowed to run such a large ac-count. It has now been ascertained beyond a doubt that this one concern owed the bank $1,281,000, most of which was unsecured. Finally, as stated yesterday, they put up $570,000 in securities—Southern Telegraph bonds, Meherrin-Valley railread bonds, and Seaboard Compress stock—none of which begin to represent their face value, About one third of the balance was not endorsed.

The Bains estimate their liabilities at $1,000,000, but still do not know what their assets are worth. The position of Mr. George M. Bain, late cashier of the Exchange, is most embarrassing, as he stands between two fires—the deposi-tors of the Exchange and of Bain & Brother, of which concern he was a partner. He is completely prostrated and not able to talk. If he assigns in favor of the depositors of either con-cern he will bring upon his head the urses of the other.

Mr. R. T. K. Bain has assured a committee from the depositors of Bain & Brother that he and his brothers will assign all their property, real and personal, in favor of their creditors on an as possible.

The United States officials have been engaged to-day in examining paper sent to the bank for collection, and all such paper will be returned to the source majority at 25,000. whence it came as soon as it has been collected. Mayor Lamb gives notice that all valuables, bonds, &c., deposited in the bank for safekeeping only will be returned to the owners at once.

It was feared that some concerns in the city employing large forces of laborers, &c., would not be able to pay off today for the week's work, but no such trouble is reported, and altogether the situation is much better than could be expected.

The committee appointed by the de positors to-day appointed a sub-com-mittee to go to Washington and urge the Comptroller to allow the bank to go into voluntary liquidation, or if the bank must go into the hands of receivers that Judge T. S. Garnett and W. H. Peters be appointed.

The actual contest was between Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Percy, the former receiving 37 votes and the latter 36. The nominating speeches were made by Mr. Lassiter, of Petersburg; Mr. Jouett, of Tennessee; and Mr. Hall, of West Virginia; and their efforts are spoken of in the most complimentary strain by those who heard them. REVIEW OF CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, April 4.—An unexpected drop in English consois was about the only moving cause in the wheat market to-day, and influenced a sharp demand at the opening, though the occasion of the decline was not made clear. It was supposed to have some connection with the Anglo-Russian dispute, however, and wasaccepted as a war sign, though no advices of any renewed foreign complications were received during the session. Wheat advanced fully latist, under a boying impetus, but fell back to medium figures at the close, and dissed about $26. Over yesterilay. The feeling in corn was firm, but no special features were developed, the market closing a shade ingher than yesterday. Speculative trading most was lighter than yesterday, Speculative trading in cats was lighter than yesterday. Provisions were only fairly active, but prices ruled a shade higher.
